

District 9 to start substance plan

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — After more than a year in the making, a substance use/abuse policy will find its way into the District 9 student handbook.

"Not having such a policy has always been a shortcoming of the district," Mike Sikora, secondary education administrative assistant, said. "We've been interested in getting one started for some time."

Passed at the March 28 school board meeting, the new policy will go into effect during the 1989-90 school year.

Sikora said the schools do have individual policies against drugs but that each school having its own is a problem.

Described as "innovative" by school officials, the policy may also benefit other districts throughout the state.

During recent state evaluation of District 9, Troy Cole of the Illinois State Board of Education requested a copy of the policy to distribute to other schools.

"We were very honored because very few schools have definite policies that cover all the important factors," Superintendent Gib Walmsley said.

The policy calls for a 10-day suspension for the use of alcohol or illicit drugs or the abuse of other medications, including over-the-counter drugs. The suspension may be reduced by as many as five days if the student is assessed by a certified (rehabilitative) agency and follows its recommendation.

Students with repeated substance offenses will also receive a 10-day suspension. They must follow the recommendation of a certified agency or face expulsion or placement at the Coordinated Youth Service alternative school.

In both cases, parents and police will be notified.

"We really needed something like this: one policy for the whole district," Sikora said.

The introduction to the policy outlines several goals for both faculty and students. For students, the goals include education on the effects of substance use, and development of attitudes and skills to help students resist substance abuse.

For teachers, the goals include education on substance use/abuse, prevention of such abuse, and ways to identify students "at risk."

Sikora said creative efforts on the policy began in January 1988 after the district received a $25,000 "drug-free" grant. Half of that grant is used toward the salary of Jack Haug, drug counselor at Granite City High School, Sikora said.

After contacting other school districts, a 10-member committee got a variety of policies to study.

In addition to Sikora and Walmsley, members of the committee include Jean Schram of Piassa Health Care, Cindy Gavitsky of Coordinated Youth, Richard Schardan of the Granite City Police Department, John Royce of Royce Realty, Ellen Voyles and Gail Eblie, elementary school principals, Dave Painter, assistant high school principal, and Jolene Terrell, school board president.

"There were just all kinds of drug policies," Sikora said. "Some were short, too short and ineffective. Others were like reading 'War and Peace.'"

But both Sikora and Walmsley agreed that the District 9 policy reached a "happy medium."

The policy also includes two things that few, if any, others do.

"Something good that we got out of the police department was the delivery-of-substances section," Sikora said.

This part of the policy imposes the same penalties as the abuse clauses on students who are caught selling or giving substances to others.

The policy also has an "intervention strategies" clause which allows a student to ask school officials for help without facing disciplinary action.

"We hope this will motivate kids to seek help," Sikora said.

And once help is sought, either through intervention or disciplinary action, a list of services will be made available to parents.

Booklets containing the names of rehabilitative services along with descriptions and costs of those services are currently being compiled, Sikora said.

"We want to be able to hand (a parent) a list of certified agencies," Sikora said. "We have to let the parents make that choice because some programs are free while others are very expensive."

4 shot on Eagle Park tavern lot

EAGLE PARK — Several shots fired in the parking lot of an Eagle Park tavern early Thursday left four men wounded, a spokesman for the Madison County Sheriff's Department said Friday.

Investigators from the department are continuing to look into the incident, which occurred at about 2:30 a.m. when gunfire erupted outside Blake's Lounge in the 200 block of Roosevelt Street in the unincorporated community south of Madison.

Several things were going on in the parking area at the time an unknown person or persons started firing guns, Capt. Robert Hertz of the sheriff's office said. No arrests had been made late Friday, he said.

All of those wounded were treated at area hospitals.

Robert Weatherspoon, 24, of St. Louis was shot once in the chest and was taken by ambulance to St. Mary's Medical Center. He was admitted, but was released Friday, an SEMC spokesman said.

Terrell Mobley, 28, of East St. Louis, who was shot and wounded in the side, was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in East St. Louis. He remained in guarded condition Friday, a hospital spokesman said.

Armond Harris, 21, of East St. Louis, also shot once in the side and taken to St. Mary's Hospital, was in satisfactory condition Friday, medical authorities said.

Kevin R. Rogers, 25, of Centerville, the fourth man reported to be wounded, was treated at Centerville Township Hospital and was released.

Woman tells of abduction

GRANITE CITY — A 30-year-old Granite City woman told police she was abducted by a man and forced to drive her car out of town between 7 and 7:30 p.m. Thursday. The abductor then stole her purse before getting out of the vehicle.

An officer talked with the victim at 11:30 p.m. Thursday after she returned to her home. An investigation is continuing.

The woman had just left a grocery store in the Belleme Village Shopping Center in the 3200 block of Nameoki Road and entered her car when a large man entered the vehicle through the passenger door and said, "Let's go" or "drive," she told police.

He told her to drive south (See ABDUCTION, Page 6A)

Costello aide denies conflict

By Edward T. Hearn
P-R/J Washington bureau

WASHINGTON — Illinois Rep. Jerry Costello's top aide, who owns a six-year-old consulting business with offices in his southern Illinois home, said he has divorced himself from the company's operations to avoid the appearance of conflict of interest.

"Matt Melucci, Costello's Washington administrative assistant since last August, said he decided to separate himself from his company, which has direct business ties to Metro East governments, rather than sell it or shield it in a blind trust."

At least 40 St. Clair County employees, including several who oversee contracts with Melucci's company, have given at least $11,500 to Rep. Costello's campaign committee.

"I was thinking I had to put it into a blind trust," Melucci said. "I talked to one of the attorneys in the (House) clerk's office about it and he said I didn't have to do any of that."

Melucci, who earns $75,000 as Costello's chief aide, is sole owner of Executive Services Inc., a consulting firm he began in 1983 and ran out of his Collinsville home with two employees.

But, in an effort to avoid allegations of conflict of interest, Melucci said he decided after joining Costello to take a "leave of absence" as the company's president, an action not required by House rules.

Melucci did not say specifically when — after going to work for Costello in August 1988 — he severed his business role.

Under House ethics rules, members of Congress and their senior employees may not pursue outside business interests except on their own time and may not use government resources to advance those business interests.

"The two important considerations are that it be done on their own time and that no resources be used to fulfill their outside responsibilities," said John Davison, attorney for the House ethics committee.

Davison said government resources were "anything paid for by government funds — the phone, the rug, the lights, the office — whatever is paid for using government funds."

Melucci said his current relationship with Executive Services means he will not attempt to solicit new business or accept a salary from the company. However, he said the company may not be sold without his permission.

"Executive Services has not derived one bit of business as a result of Jerry being in Congress and my being up here," Melucci said.

In a separate interview, Costello said he applauded Melucci's decision to distance himself from the company while devoting full time to his Washington congressional duties.

In recent years, Melucci said, his company has had contracts with several Metro East governments, including departments within the St. Clair County government, which Costello headed as county board chairman until his first election to the House nine months ago.

The company continues to do business with local governments in Melucci's absence. In one case, the firm is consulting for a St. Clair County agency headed by a man who gave $250 to the Costello campaign.

The contract is for Executive Services to represent the county's Intergovernmental Grants Department in pending labor talks. The company charges $35 an hour, said Dan Maher, the county director of administration.

(In 1988, Melucci's company earned about $4,000 in consulting fees from St. Clair County, Maher said.)

He said the company helped to negotiate labor pacts with workers from the county sheriff's office and the animal control division.

St. Clair County IGD director Richard Mark, who is an overseer of the Executive Services contract, gave Costello's election campaign $250, according to Federal Election Commission records. Maher also gave $250, the FEC records show.

FEC records also show at least 40 St. Clair County employees pitched in at least $11,500 (See CONFLICT, Page 6A)

Haine cleans office

State's attorney dumps two assistants, brings back an old pal, Don Weber

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — State's Attorney William Haine didn't promise to hire him, told him he wouldn't hire him, but now says he had no choice — Don Weber is an assistant state's attorney.

"Internal" problems caused Haine to shake up his office Thursday. Assistant state's attorneys Susan Jensen and Mike Nieskes were asked to resign as part of the reorganization that may also include the addition of Mark Goldenberg, city attorney for Granite City, to his staff, Haine said.

Goldenberg's law firm would handle the Granite City misdemeanor cases currently being handled by Casper Niphoosian, who is rumored to have been asked to resign.

Losing Jensen and Nieskes meant losing two "top-notch attorneys," Haine said, and hiring Weber became "a necessity" for the office, if not a good move politically.

Weber, a Republican, was state's attorney from 1980 to 1984. He was defeated by Dick Allen, who was defeated by Haine in last spring's Democratic primary.

Weber, Haine's Republican opponent, dropped out of the race prior to the 1988 general election and Allen accused the two of making a deal. Both Haine and Weber denied then and now that any deal was made.

"When I was elected, I did not intend to hire Mr. Weber. He asked and I told him I couldn't," Haine said. "But now I decided I must do it in order to fulfill my obligation to maintain law and order in the county."

"Don is one of the best courtroom prosecutors in the state. There was no doubt he wanted to come on board."

"I took an oath of office to actively pursue conviction of criminals. Therefore, I had no choice but to hire the best person available."

Weber will specialize in prosecuting high-profile crimes, Haine said.

"He will not be making policy," Haine said. "I will be making policy."

Prosecution of high-profile crimes has traditionally been the

Red Cross salutes volunteers

The Tri-City Chapter of the American Red Cross held an awards and recognition dinner at Jerry's Cafeteria on March 27 to honor the many volunteers of the organization.

Awards were given according to hours volunteered in one specific service, years of service and positions held within the local chapter.

Awards were handed out to volunteers by Chapter Chairman William Badger and Volunteer Chairman Elsie Mayhew.

Sixty-four volunteers were recognized with service award pins and tabs for volunteer service given, ranging from less than a year to over 16 years.

A combined total of years of all volunteers was listed as more than 211 years of service.

The main speaker was David Denton, vice president and general manager of the Midwestern operations headquarters of the Red Cross in St. Louis.

Denton spoke on volunteerism and praised the Tri-City Chapter volunteers for "dedicated service through the good times as well as the bad."

Special recognition was awarded to volunteers who had completed exceptional volunteer service. They were:

•William A. Krupko.

He received a framed certificate of appreciation for 300 hours of service in the field of health and safety.

•Charles Holman Jr.
He received a framed certificate of appreciation for 500 hours of service in the field of health and safety.

•Walter W. Krupko.

He received a plaque engraved with the award of appreciation for 6,000 hours of service in the field of health and safety. Walter Krupko was also awarded a 15-year service pin.

•Clifford and Maxine Duniphan.

They were presented a brass and glass clock from Hudson's Jewelers, signifying the time spent in volunteer service for the Red Cross.

Clifford Duniphan recently retired after 37 years as a Red Cross first-aid instructor. His wife, Maxine, retired several years ago with more than 30 years as a first-aid instructor and 20 years as a member of the Tri-City Chapter's board of directors.

Those receiving pins that evening were Douglas Ackerman, William Badger, Elmer Dehn, Al Hudzik, Ola Jones, Elsie Mayhew, Janet Mills, Sarah Metcalf and Christ Fashoff.

Along with service pins, Badger received a 1988-89 chapter chairman's pin, and Clifford Duniphan received a past chapter chairman pin for holding the chairman position in 1988-89.

Optifast meeting April 19

The Optifast orientation program will be held on April 19 at 7 p.m. in the Wellness Center gym in Granite City.

"The program is designed for individuals interested in changing their lifestyle so they can have a healthier life," said Jim Chiappa, program director.

"Optifast participants can lose weight safely, under the supervision of a doctor and a specially trained staff. They can lose weight for life, through this program. It's not easy. It's hard work, but the results are worth it."

For more information, the Optifast number is 788-3939.

Experts say United States not ready for earthquake

By Melissa Robinson
States News Service

WASHINGTON — The United States is sorely unprepared to survive a major earthquake like the one that devastated Soviet Armenia late last year, scientists and rescue experts said recently.

Witnesses testified before the House Science Research and Technology Subcommittee on whether an earthquake disaster similar to the one that struck Armenia could happen here.

Experts agreed that at least one major earthquake will hit the country—possibly in Missouri—within the next few decades.

"There will be a major quake—certainly there will be one in California within my lifetime, and very possibly there will be one or more in lesser prepared areas of the country," said Christopher Rojahn, executive director of the Applied Technology Council of Redwood City, Calif.

The seismological and engineering conditions that collided in the Armenian earthquake disaster also exist in many regions of the United States from the Puget Sound in the west to Washington to the east, between St. Louis, Mo. and Memphis, Tenn., according to several scientists.

"Given the regional similarities in earthquake potential, building types, and the absence of preparedness programs, the possibility for an earthquake with consequences of comparable proportions is realistic," said Peter Yanev, chairman of EQE Engineering Inc. in San Francisco.

The Armenian earthquake left tens of thousands dead and injured and resulted in economic losses estimated as high as $40 billion.

Some conditions here present even greater threats. For example, the United States, unlike Soviet Armenia, has thousands of highways built over other highways which could collapse in a major earthquake.

"We are at risk if there's a major earthquake on the Atlantic Coast or in the Central states," said Rep. Doug Walgren, D-Pa., who chaired the subcommittee hearing. "Pittsburgh would be swept right up into it."

He said the national economy also would be crippled if California is hit because it is a center of agriculture and military research. "We would be starving on the East Coast pretty fast," he said.

Yanev and other engineers testified that there is a definite need for more federal dollars to fund research on building earthquake-resistant buildings and to reinforce existing structures.

When an earthquake hits the country, "major life loss unparalleled in U.S. history, and tremendous economic losses, can only be prevented by instituting programs for identification and retrofitting of existing hazardous buildings and improving new design and construction," Yanev said.

"We have a tremendous inventory of old buildings which are often quite vulnerable to earthquake motions," said Loring A. Wyllie Jr., chairman of the board of H.J. Degenkolb Associates, San Francisco engineers.

"We have a tremendous and overwhelming dilemma of either accepting the fate and hazard of these potential collapse hazards or marshaling the resources to strengthen and retrofit these buildings," he said.

Other medical and rescue experts stressed the need for a coordinated federal disaster relief plan and rescue and medical team training.

Any increase in federal funding, however, seems unlikely in another year of budgeting federal deficits and spending cuts, according to Walgren.

He said Congress likely will reauthorize funds for the National Earthquake Hazards Reduction Program, mostly for scientific research on minimizing earthquake damage. But he said there will probably be less than $1 million available for disaster relief planning and training.

Major quake nearly certain by 2035

By Sabrina Eaton
P-R/A Washington bureau

WASHINGTON — Chances of an earthquake rocking the St. Louis bi-state area before the year 2035 are between 86 and 97 percent, an expert testified before a Senate subcommittee April 7.

A quake measuring 6.3 on the Richter scale would cause extensive damage to buildings, topple chimneys and crack foundations. It would break pipes, destroy streets and damage supports of older bridges, said Dr. Robert Ketter of the National Center for Earthquake Engineering Research.

"I would suspect there would be a small loss of life, although it would not be a major problem," Ketter told the Senate subcommittee on Science, Technology and Space.

In that time period, Ketter said, there is a 2.7 to 4 percent chance of a quake measuring 8.3 on the Richter scale—the same magnitude as a tremor that shook New Madrid, Mo., in 1811, judged to be the largest earthquake ever in the United States.

During that quake, hills heaved, rivers are said to have reversed their flow, and church bells rang in Boston, more than 1,000 miles away. But there were few casualties because the region was sparsely settled.

"If an earthquake like that happened today, it would be devastating," he said. "It would result in damage, disruptions, casualties and injuries on a scale never experienced from a natural hazard in the history of this nation."

The more severe quake would topple some masonry walls in St. Louis, move foundations of frame houses, break tree branches and crack soil, he said.

Closer to the fault, in the vicinity of Memphis, Tenn., most masonry and frame structures would be destroyed with their foundations. There would be large landslides, railroad tracks would be bent, and highway bridge spans would be unseated and roads closed as a consequence, said Ketter.

He predicted between 676 and 4,807 deaths near the epicenter, depending on whether the quake occurred at night or during daylight. Damage would exceed $1 billion, and about 460,000 people would need shelter.

"Earthquakes strike without warning, making them potentially the most crippling of all natural disasters," he said. "Due to this spontaneity, researchers argue that the time for preparedness is now."

Ketter and two other earthquake experts recommended that the United States devote more funds to earthquake education and preparedness, concentrate on making buildings more resistant to earthquakes, and devise search and rescue methods to find survivors in building wreckage.

The Senate hearing was supposed to focus on a proposal by Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., to shift responsibilities for coordinating emergency responses to earthquakes from the Federal Emergency Management Administration to the U.S. Geological Survey.

But an impassioned speech by Sen. John C. Danforth, R-Missouri, after Ketter's testimony shifted discussions from Cranston's proposal to America's preparedness to deal with such a tragedy.

"That is such a classic frolic and detour for the U.S. Congress to be debating who has jurisdiction," he declared. "I don't care if jurisdiction is with the National Board of Test-Tasters!"

USGS and FEMA officials said they oppose the bill. Both FEMA Director Julius W. Becton Jr. and USGS Director Dallas L. Peck said the measure is unnecessary. Coordinated efforts between the groups are working, they said.

Horseradish lovers in for 'root awakening'

Collinsville's second annual Horseradish Festival will be a treat for lovers of the sharp-tasting plant.

"A Root Awakening" is the theme of this year's festival, to be held Saturday, May 6, at Collinsville's Woodland Park.

This year people at the festival will be able to have letters postmarked with a special horseradish cancellation stamp.

The stamp, which reads "Horseradish: A Root Awakening," will be available at the festival and up to 30 days afterward at the Collinsville Post Office, according to George Astling, co-chairman of the International Horseradish Festival Committee. However, any letters canceled will have the May 6 date.

Astling said last year's festival attracted between 500 and 700 people.

"It would be nice to get 2,000 to 3,000 people this year," he said.

The festival will begin with a 5K run at 10 a.m. and will continue with the "horseradish olympics" featuring a root toss, a recipe contest and a horseradish-eating contest.

Senate bill seeks to protect flag

Lobbying by several veterans' groups for passage of legislation to protect the flag of the United States appears to be working. A state Senate committee April 12 approved a resolution that is now before the full Senate.

Controversy in Chicago has centered at the Art Institute for the past several weeks, involving an exhibit which displays the flag on the floor. Veterans' groups have protested the exhibit daily and have been joined by area legislators in their efforts.

Senate Bill 176 would address future situations by clarifying the law. The bill would make it a Class 4 felony to display or present the flag in a manner that would encourage or invite its mutilation, defacing or trampling.

A Class 4 felony carries a penalty of one or three years in prison and/or a $10,000 fine.

'Good Vibrations' to come to Magic House

By Pamela Selbert
Staff affiliate

The Magic House, St. Louis' Children's Museum, is well-known for its variety of fascinating activities and "magic" for children aged 1 to 52. Few can go there, spend a few hours, and not come away filled with the wonder of childhood, when magical things were to be enjoyed, but not necessarily understood.

The museum has designated April as the "Month of the Young Child," so special Sunday events will be designed for children ages 1 through 7. Parents are encouraged to participate in these hands-on projects, and older children have come too, there's lots to keep them entertained.

On April 23, "Fun in the Sun" will give little ones the opportunity to create fashionable "sunglasses" for themselves. "We'll have the frames, which will be big to allow lots of room for decorating, precut from poster board," said Andrea Gant, education coordinator for the museum. "What they'll end up with will probably be more like a mask."

Children will make a selection from a variety of colors of cellophane for their "lenses," and then, with museum staff and parents to assist if needed, they will select materials of their choice to glue to their frames, "being as creative as they want to," Gant said.

"It'll be a fun project for parents to enjoy with their children," Gant said.

"Fun in the Sun" will be held between 12:30 and 2 p.m., and will be a "drop in" activity. Materials will be available, and families may stay as long as they like, Gant said.

On April 30, "May Day Welcome" will give young children a chance to greet spring by making a May Day basket.

"We'll be using a variety of materials here, too," Gant said. For the very young, there will be loosely woven plastic baskets through which children will weave yarn and paper. Older children will be introduced to simple weaving techniques, and may create baskets of their own from heavy colored paper.

"These will be made from tissue paper and pipe cleaners, created to the child's design, but again, there will be staff and parents to help out," Gant said. She added that all materials for these April projects are free with the price of admission to the museum. "May Day Welcome" also will take place from 12:30 to 4 p.m.

For older children, ages 8 to 11, the Magic House will offer a series of programs on Saturday mornings, "Good Vibrations." The hands-on programs will "explore and compare different sources of sound, pitch, and loudness," said Gant. Children will make their own music while learning how sound travels.

"Good Vibrations" will be offered at 11 a.m. Saturdays, April 22 and 29, in the Special Events room. It will last approximately 45 minutes, and is free with paid admission.

Of course, families may stay and enjoy other activities at the museum as long as they like.

The Magic House, St. Louis' Children's Museum is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday, April 22 and 29, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, and noon to 6 p.m. on Sunday. Admission is $2.50 for adults, and $2 for children 11 and under. The museum is at 516 S. Kirkwood Road. Those who wish more information should call (314) 822-8900.

Theater Factory plans season

Theater Factory St. Louis will offer a varied slate of shows that includes two St. Louis premieres, including a contemporary hit Broadway musical.

The season will open June 16 with "The Boys Next Door" by Tom Griffin. This premiere is sponsored by Lifeskills Foundation and is about four mentally disabled men living together in an apartment. The comedy was a critical and popular success in New York last year. Performances will be at Country Day School.

"Roberta," with music by Jerome Kern and book and lyrics by Otto Harbach, is set in Paris, 1930. The musical opens

July 7 at Country Day School and includes favorite melodies like "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes."

A Shakespearean comedy, "Twelfth Night," will be performed at Mary Institute beginning July 26.

And the season concludes with "Sunday in the Park with George" by Stephen Sondheim, who composed music and lyrics, and James Lapine, who wrote the book. The musical is a depiction of the life of artist George Seurat. This St. Louis premiere will begin Aug. 16 at the St. Louis Art Center.

Subscriptions are $42 and $50. Single tickets range from $11 to $15. Those who wish more information or a season brochure should call Theater Factory at (314) 832-1919.

JOHN CUSACK EXPLAINS the game of baseball to a group of youngsters in "Eight Men Out," the John Sayles movie about the 1919 Chicago Black Sox scandal.

Videos offer remedy to baseball mania

Bob Costas, veteran NBC sportscaster, reaches into his wallet and wades past the usual credit cards, driver's license and cash to pull out a faded piece of colored cardboard.

"This is the 1958 Mickey Mantle baseball card that I've had since I was 6 years old," says Costas while holding "The 500 Home Run Club" (#398), Cabin Fever, $29.95. "Any right-thinking Americans should have a religious artifact with them."

If you agree with Costas, then you are a prime candidate for some of the dozen baseball tapes that recently have been released or are coming out. Like a good shortstop, these tapes show great range, going from "Balltalk: The Voices of Summer" (1989, J2, $29.95, due late April) and "Mickey Mantle: The American Dream Comes True" (1989, Fox Hills, $19.95, June) to a blooper reel aimed to help sell Sports Illustrated subscriptions (June), all the way to a pair of diamond movies, "Eight Men Out" (1988, Orion, $89.98, April 27) and "Stealing Home" (1988, Warner, $89.98, April 5).

Videotapes basically skip all the dull stuff and cut right to the glory of Bobby Thompson's "Shot, Heard Round the World"—the three-run ninth-inning home run that helped the New York Giants to beat the Brooklyn Dodgers in the 1951 National League playoff game.

"That was the worst day of my life," recalls Larry King, the Brooklyn-bred host of a talk show on CNN. "Heart surgery was maybe a distant second." King also hosts "Balltalk," which ranks as one of the best sports nostalgia tapes ever made. Announcers are better story tellers than most athletes, and the producers have rounded up a Hall of Fame crew: Red Barber (Dodgers/Yankees), Mel Allen (Yankees), Jack Brickhouse (Cubs), Jack Buck (Cardinals), Curt Gowdy (Red Sox) and Ernie Harwell (Tigers). Trafficking in nostalgia is what these tapes are about.

"The 500 Home Run Club" (toll-free order number: 1-800-55-FEVER) pairs Costas and Mickey Mantle to review the exploits of the 14 men to pop 500 round-trippers. An excellent tape, although Costas, at times, looks like he is ready to kneel at Mickey's feet. But for those truly ready to kneel, "Mickey Mantle: The American Dream Comes True," features clips sandwiched between the Oklahoma kid telling behind-the-scenes stories about his buddies Billy Martin and Whitey "Slick" Ford. Mickey will not give Mark Twain a run for his money, but true believers will enjoy many of the tidbits.

Another tape that worships a Yankee is "My Dad, the Babe," released last year, but now available through Major League Baseball Productions' toll-free hotline, 1-800-451-7020. This basically is a video biography with the added dimension of Dorothy Ruth Piore telling tales. When Ruth died, more than 100,000 fans filed past his body lying in state in the Rotunda at Yankee Stadium.

The largest single distributor of baseball tapes is Major League Baseball Productions (1-800-451-7020). MLB offers 20 plus titles, including the superb "The History of Baseball" ($29.95).

As for the movies, "Eight Men Out"—the John Sayles movie about the 1919 Chicago Black Sox scandal—basically chronicles the scandal but it lacks a bit in drama. "Stealing Home," starring Mark Harmon and Jodie Foster, gets a D+.

The long and the short of 'perky' Shelley Long

By Harry Hamm
Staff affiliate

Shelley Long's movies reflect a lot of what she feels about herself. The likable, perky, always well-dressed actress says she will take a role only if she feels some type of kinship with the character she is being asked to play. Long's instincts about a project have proven to be right as often as they are wrong. Long turned down the role of the lady anchorperson in the disappointing comedy "Switching Channels," a role eventually taken by Kathleen Turner, but Long's last film, "Hello Again," was also a box office flop.

There is an up-and-down pattern to the Long list of film credits. On the up side, there have been successful Long star vehicles like "Night Shift" from 1982, "The Money Pit" from 1986 and "Outrageous Fortune" from 1987. On the down side, there have been films like "Irreconcilable Differences" in 1984, "Cave-man" in 1981, "A Small Circle of Friends" in 1980 and "Loose in 1983.

The latest film starring Long is another comedy, "Troop Beverly Hills." Based on the real-life experiences of the film's producer Ava Fries, herself a resident of Beverly Hills, it is the story of a wealthy housewife (Long) whose marriage is on the rocks. She is anxious to prove to her skeptical husband that she is a doer and therefore accepts a position as a Girl Scout group leader to make her point.

"I loved the script," says Long, 38. "It was very funny, but the honest expression between mother and daughter demonstrated a special connection, an honesty and an intensity in the characters and their relationship. It was special because it showed love, fun, openness and the impetus to reach out to other people. The humanness of an isolated moment is what stayed with me. When a scene or a film can capture those kind of feelings, I'm there."

"It was when Phyllis (Long's character) and Hannah (Jenny Lewis, who plays Long's daughter) trade mother/daughter confidences during the jamboree hike in the wilderness that this film really touched my heart."

Chosen in 1988 as Female Star of the Year by ShowWest, a film trade group, Long lives in Los Angeles with her husband, Bruce Tyson, an investment advisor, and their 4-year-old daughter, Juliana. Long sees being a wife and mother as somewhat more controllable than trying to remain a bankable, consistent star in films.

"The process of making films is a tricky one," Long says. "It's tough because there's the pressure of wanting to do a good job and the expectations of the studio involved. I think audiences will have a good time watching 'Troop Beverly Hills.'" Long says, with a laugh. "But the picture also has emotional moments which will touch viewers deeply. It's a film about relationships of all kinds."

The director of "Troop Beverly Hills," Jeff Kanew ("Revenge of the Nerds," "Eddie Macdon's Run," "Gotcha" and "Tough Guys"), says Long possesses a personal quality that gives most comic performers their important edge, unpredictability.

Kanew says, "As a performer, Shelley seems to have a secret monitor in her head, if you will. She knows instinctively when the scene is right. In this movie, Shelley's character is a little looser than previous women she has played. She's much more whimsical. She's also an approachable, huggable kind of person. Believe it or not, she reminds me of Kirk Douglas and Burt Lancaster because they too are people who have done so many movies they just know how to get the magic right. You can certainly say the same for Shelley."

Ironically, Long, who is from a middle-class family in Fort Wayne, Ind., still feels intimidated by the Beverly Hills lifestyle. Even though she has been a resident of the area for more than 10 years, Long admits she can't swallow the high price tags and the nouveau riche lifestyle.

Gardeners warned of frost damage

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Although most of the cold weather is probably behind us, local gardeners should still take precautions against frost damage if they have already set out seedlings, said an agronomist with the University of Illinois Extension Service.

The temperature dropped to 32 degrees or less in low-lying areas of Madison County several nights early last week, said Lynn Weis. That can spell trouble for fruit trees in particular, Weis said.

"Peach trees that have budded are 'most susceptible,'" she said, and would probably not bear fruit if struck by the cold. Most of the local peach crop appears to have been spared, preliminary studies indicate.

Most apple trees haven't budded yet, she said, and in any event apple trees are more resistant to frost.

She said garden seedlings are very susceptible to frost, especially such plants as cabbages and tomatoes.

When near-freezing temperatures are forecast, gardeners should cover their cabbage and tomato plants, thus trapping heat from the ground. She recommended covering seedlings with straw or with cut-out plastic gallon milk cartons.

The seedlings should be uncovered about mid-morning so that they can get sunlight, Weis said.

Weis reminded gardeners that the temperature can be as much as five degrees cooler in low-lying areas than the forecast temperature.

Gardeners reap more than vegetables

Because this is the season for planting and planting vegetable gardens or raising vegetables around the home, a gardening class is scheduled in Granite City for April 19.

The University of Illinois Extension Service Consumer and Homemaking Education Program (CHEP) is offering garden plans and skills for low-income families and individuals.

Madison County Community Development is co-sponsoring the program through a Community Service Block Grant. The grant will provide each low-income participating family a voucher to purchase seeds, plants and tools, said Wilma Hancock, a coordinator.

Participants will receive information about basic gardening skills. The purpose of the garden program is to help each family supplement its food budget and provide an opportunity for children to learn valuable lessons and share time with their families, Hancock said.

Parents and children must work together in a garden since adult supervision is necessary, she said.

While working in a garden, children can learn responsibility under conditions that are relatively safe.

the plants grow, blossom and produce from a sense of enjoyment and accomplishment can be felt.

"Maintaining a child's interest in a garden throughout the whole growing season is a challenge. If you're just simply pulling weeds or opening a hoe, it gets dull in a hurry."

"To maintain a child's interest, select different plants and stagger the planting so that the garden will produce throughout the season. A variety of things happening at all times will help to maintain the child's interest," she said.

The garden class is for anyone who enrolls, but the vouchers are only available to low-income persons residing in Granite City, Madison, Venice and Pontoon Beach.

The class will be held at 1254 Niedringhaus Ave. (W.I.C. Room) at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, April 19. To enroll, persons may call Wilma Hancock at 876-4513.

Conflict

to Costello's campaign. The group includes Mark's predecessor as IGD director, Dave Wagner, who gave $250 and later quit the post to become Costello's campaign manager.

Mark defended the county's relationship with Executive Services, which was hired by the county board at a negotiated price, not as a result of competitive bidding.

He said the county would have dropped the company only if it provided inferior services.

"I have never given any thought to breaking that contract," Mark said. "I didn't see any problem with how it was set up."

Robert Gaffner, the Republican who lost to Costello in the August special election and again in November, questioned the connection between Meluc's company and government workers who gave to Costello's campaign.

"It would appear that any hint of impropriety ought not to be part of a congressional office," Gaffner said.

"I think that what you are seeing with (House) Speaker (Jim) Wright, it is incumbent on all congressmen to avoid any hint of impropriety."

Executive Services consultant Judy Nelson, who will assist St. Clair in labor talks with 65 IGD employees, said she had infrequent contact with Meluc in the last nine months.

"I talked to him once a week, maybe on Sundays. He doesn't know how (the company's) doing. I suppose if we were going to fold, I would have to call him," she said.

Lady Warriors clip 'Wings'

By Dave Whaley

Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — Sure, the Alton Redwing soccer team was undefeated. But the feeling was Mick Brown's young team had yet to face a big test. A real test.

The first mid-term exam came Thursday. And asking the questions was one of the toughest professors in the area, the Lady Warriors. Alton came up with a few answers, but not nearly enough as Granite City raised its record to 5-1 with a 3-0 victory over the Wings, now 7-1.

"I don't think Granite City necessarily has better athletes than we do, but we were definitely beaten by a team with better soccer skills," said Brown. "We're just a very young team and Granite City showed us a few things here today."

Senior Jennifer Debeve provided all the offense needed 10 minutes into the game when she converted a penalty kick past Redwing keeper Kathy Klope after a hand ball violation in the penalty area. It was Debeve's fifth goal of the year.

"It was a call we haven't been getting," said Lady Warrior coach Gene Baker. "We're surprised when we do get it anymore."

"I question that call," said Brown. "The girl's hand was up and the ball just bounced up and hit her in the hand. She didn't hit it as much as it hit her. You give up a goal like that early and it can take your head out of the game. We were in zombie-land for a while after that."

Debeve assisted on the Lady Warriors' second goal midway through the second quarter, although it was freshman Amanda Witter who started the play.

Witter made a nice centering pass with Debeve and Addie Lenzi waiting. Klope, who had five shutouts and had allowed only two goals in seven previous games, came out to knock the ball away. But Debeve got a piece of it, too, and the ball slid right to Lenzi who pounded in her third goal of the season.

"It was a play the goalie had to make (coming out to intercept the centering pass)," said Brown.

The Lady Warriors tacked on the final goal midway through the third quarter on 25-yard direct kick by senior Cheryl Stacey. She got her first goal of the year by lofting a perfect shot into the upper corner that Klope had no chance on.

"It was kind of a misplay on our part and they capitalized on it," said Brown. "Gene will do that."

"Stacey really kept things together for us all day," said Baker. "Angela Blasen has put a string of good games together and Shelly Reynolds was excellent in the backfield."

"Our execution today was exceptional. We played the way we wanted to play, and if it hadn't been for their goalie, we would have scored a couple right away."

The Lady Warriors outshot the Redwings 18-2, but Alton had some chances in the second half. Freshman Carrie Bechtold was stopped by goalie Chris Kasproich in the third quarter, then was hammered down in the penalty area in the fourth quarter after getting the ball past Kasproich. But there was no call.

"If there's a penalty kick called on that hand ball early in the game, I would think there would be one there for us," said Brown.

Baker had nothing but praise for the Redwings, who start only one senior.

"They have some athletes," he said. "All the good teams on our side of the river are young. Collinsville was loaded last year and they have almost everyone back. Metro East is even younger. It's going to be good competition for the next couple of years."

NOTES: Granite City had six corner kicks to two for Alton. After Saturday's game against Collinsville, the Lady Warriors host McCluer North on Monday at 4 p.m., then will be off until April 26 when they travel to Alton.

Gauch has 1-hitter; Lady Warriors lose

The city of Belleville maintained its seemingly eternal dominance over Granite City in girls sports Thursday.

The Belleville West Lady Maroons beat up on the Lady Warriors 9-1 in Southwestern Conference action in the first inning and held on to that lead until the third. The Lady Maroons (2-1) tied the game with a single run in the third, took the lead with another run in the fourth, scored twice in the fifth and added five more in the sixth.

Kim Pawlak took the loss on the mound. She allowed 10 hits and walked two. Pawlak also had the Lady Warriors' only hit. Granite City plays at East St. Louis on Tuesday and hosts Collinsville on Thursday. Both games begin at 4 p.m.

Warriors break streak; beat Comanches, 12-2

By Dave Whaley

Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — The Warriors took a step back in time Friday, ending a three-game losing streak in the process.

For the first time since beating Jerseyville 11-1 in the regional playoffs on May 30, 1987, the Warriors won a game by the 10-run rule when Chris Bartling singled in two runs in the bottom of the sixth for a 12-2 victory over Cahokia. Granite City took a 6-5 record into Saturday's double-header at Jerseyville while the Comanches fell to 2-3.

"We finally showed a little aggressiveness with the bats," said Warrior coach Bob Stegemeyer. "We got men on base and then got the key hits from the bottom of the batting order."

Indeed, it was a close game for four innings as the Warriors and Kevin Wozniak (2-0) held on to a 3-2 lead. But they loaded the bases with one out against Cahokia sophomore Ronnie Touchette. Jimmy Meppiel relieved but Chad Lignoul singled past first for one run and right fielder Fred Garrett's high throw home allowed another run to score.

Then Kory Burton, moved down to the No. 9 spot, singled home two of his four RBIs for a 7-2 lead.

Bartling drove in another run and scored on a wild pitch before the fifth ended. Burton walked with the bases loaded in the sixth before Bartling finished the game.

"Their pitching helped us get going a little bit, but that sophomore showed some ability," Stegemeyer said.

"We just weren't into it today," said Cahokia coach Warren Luter. "We had been getting 12 or 15 hits in our other games this week. But I could tell in the first couple innings today that we weren't alive with the bats."

Brian Harshany singled and Tony Sternberg doubled in the second before Touchette issued bases-loaded walks to Burton and Chris Ryan to give the Warriors a 2-1 lead. Kevin Brown tied the game in the third with a home run off Wozniak. But the Warriors took the lead for good in the fourth when Sternberg singled and scored on a two-out error by Meppiel, who was playing first base at the time.

"I didn't think Wozniak was as sharp as he was last time out," Stegemeyer said. "But Cahokia has hit well early in the year, so holding them to two runs is still very good."

The Warriors suffered a miserable afternoon Thursday, dropping a home double-header to Belleville West. Keith Matlock had a two-run homer in the first game, but the Maroons won 7-3 as reliever Randy Lisch fanned Joe Wallace with the bases loaded to end the game. Tad Smith got the win and Tim Black (1-1) took the loss.

"Tim threw pretty well," said Stegemeyer. "They got some breaks with seeing-eye hits to score some runs."

Tom Senecyn took the loss in the 14-4 nightcap. Granite City took a 3-2 lead into the sixth, but West scored five in the sixth and seven in the seventh against Senecyn (0-2) and relievers Chris Wiehard and Lignoul.

Dennis Labardy had three hits for the Warriors, but Smith had three hits and drove in five runs for the Maroons (4-0).

INSURE YOUR FUTURE

INSURANCE—The Ultimate Protection

Life insurance a question of needs, money

When you buy life insurance, you want a policy which fits your needs without costing too much. Your first step is to decide how much you need, how much you can afford to pay and the kind of policy you want. Then, find out what various companies charge for that kind of policy. You can find important differences in the cost of life insurance by using the life insurance cost indexes which are described in this guide. A good life insurance agent or company will be able and willing to help you with each of these shopping steps.

If you are going to make a good choice when you buy life insurance, you need to understand which kinds are available. If one kind does not seem to fit your needs, ask about the other kinds which are described in this guide. If you feel that you need more information than is given here, you may want to check with a life insurance agent or company or books on life insurance in your public library.

Life insurance can be bought either on an individual basis or on a group basis. Group insurance may be inexpensive when compared to individual insurance. It is important to remember that insurance purchased on this basis is usually term insurance, and hence will not develop cash values, and is dependent on your continued membership in the group or employment. Also, the amount of insurance that is available for purchased is usually limited.

Choosing the Right Kind

One way to decide how much life insurance you need is to figure out how much cash and income your dependents would need if you were to die. Life insurance can provide cash for last expenses, and income for your family's future living expenses. Your insurance should come as close as you can afford to making up the difference between (1) what your dependents would have if you were to die now, and (2) what they would actually need at some time in the future when needs change.

Choosing the Right Kind

All life insurance policies agree to pay an amount of money if you die. But all policies are not the same. There are three basic kinds of life insurance.

1. Term insurance.
  2. Whole life insurance.
  3. Endowment insurance.
- The kind of life insurance you purchase is dependent on the need you are trying to satisfy. Some needs are temporary, i.e., do not exist throughout your life, while other needs are permanent. As an example, the need to finance your children's education is a temporary need. The need to meet mortgage payments is also a temporary need since it exists only while the mortgage exists. On the other hand, the financial needs of your family after your death is a permanent need.

"Your life insurance should come as close as you can afford to making up the difference between (1) what your dependents would have if you were to die now, and (2) what they would actually need at some time in the future when needs change."

Remember, no matter how fancy the policy title or sales presentation might appear, all life insurance policies contain one or more of the three basic kinds. If you are confused about a policy that sounds complicated, ask the agent or company if it combines more than one kind of life insurance. The following is a brief description of the three basic kinds:

Term Insurance

Term insurance is death protection for a "term" or one or more years. Death benefits will be paid only if you die within that term of years. Term insurance generally provides the largest immediate death protection for your premium dollar.

Some term insurance policies are "renewable" for one or more additional terms even if your health has changed. Each time you renew the policy for a new term, premiums will be higher. You should check the premiums at older ages and the length of time the policy can be continued.

Some term insurance policies are also "convertible." This means that before the end of the conversion period, you may trade the term policy for a whole life or endowment insurance policy even if you are not in good health. Premiums for the new policy will be higher than you have been paying for the term insurance.

Whole Life Insurance

Whole life insurance gives death protection for as long as you live. The most common type is called "straight life" or "ordinary life" insurance, for which you pay the same premiums for as long as you live. These premiums can be several times higher than you would pay initially for the same amount of term insurance. But they are smaller than the premiums you would eventually pay if you were to keep renewing a term insurance policy until your later years.

Some whole life policies let you pay premiums for a shorter period such as 20 years, or until age 65. Premiums for these policies are higher than for ordinary life insurance since the premium payments are squeezed into a shorter period.

Although you pay higher premiums, to begin with, for whole life insurance than for term insurance, whole life insurance policies develop "cash values" which you may have if you stop paying premiums. You can generally either take the cash, or use it to buy some continuing insurance protection. Technically speaking, these values are called "nonforfeiture benefits." This refers to benefits you do not lose (or "forfeit") when you stop paying premiums. The amount of these benefits depends on the kind of policy you have, its size, and how long you have owned it.

A policy with cash values may also be used as collateral for a loan. If you borrow from the life insurance company, the rate of interest is shown in your policy. Any money which you owe on a policy loan would be deducted from the benefits if you were to die, or from the cash value if you were to stop paying premiums.

Endowment Insurance

An endowment insurance policy pays a sum or income to you — the policyholder — if you live to a certain age. If you were to die before then, the death benefit would be paid to your beneficiary. Premiums and cash values for endowment insurance are higher than for the same amount of whole life insurance. Thus endowment insurance gives you the least amount of death protection for your premium dollar.

Finding a Low-Cost Policy

After you have decided which kind of life insurance fits your needs, look for a good buy. Your chances of finding a good buy are better if you use two types of index numbers that have been developed to aid in shopping for life insurance. One is called the "Surrender Cost Index" and the other is the "Net Payment Cost Index."

"Cost" is the difference between what you pay and what you get back. If you pay a premium for life insurance and get nothing back, your cost for the death protection is the premium. If you pay a premium and get something back later on, such as a cash value, your cost is smaller than the premium.

The cost of some policies can also be reduced by dividends; these are called "participating" policies. Companies may tell you what their current dividends are, but the size of future dividends is unknown today and cannot be guaranteed. Dividends actually paid are set each year by the company.

INSURANCE—The Ultimate Protection

Study those car policies

By Sylvia Porter
Staff affiliate

Automobile insurance is among the fastest-rising costs of operating your automobile. In recent years, premiums for protection have spurted far beyond most other inflationary increases — more than doubling in a three-year period. Automobile insurance now ranks second in automobile costs, behind depreciation.

However, there is much you can do to lower your premiums. Begin by checking with your state insurance commissioner's office to see if they have any material to help you.

For example, they should have information showing how rates are set and explaining the various kinds of available coverage.

Lee Rivers of the Florida Insurance Commissioner's Office says coverage options vary from state to state. "For example, in some states you can opt for a high deductible in your medical coverage, a wise move if you have other health coverage," Rivers says.

Here are steps you can take that may reduce your rates:

• Make sure your insurance carrier's information about your driving record is accurate. If you have no accidents or moving violations, your rate will be lower. But that's the case only if your insurance company knows about your good driving record. Also, if your record contains violations, the state should be wiped clean after three years. Check to make sure this has been done.

• You can realize substantial savings merely by raising your collision deductible to $500 or $1,000. A substantial percentage of insurance claims are paid to cover minor "fender-bender" damage.

• Consider whether collision insurance is a good idea for your car. If you drive an old clunker, the amount you pay for collision coverage could, in a couple of years, equal or surpass the value of the car itself. In this case, you probably would be better off saving the money and insuring yourself on collisions.

• When buying a new car, don't forget to consider insurance costs when determining the overall price of the automobile. That handsome little sports car usually will cost much more to insure than a big family sedan. In fact, the difference can amount to thousands of dollars, depending on where you live and your driving record.

If you are in an "assigned risk" group, where companies pool the riskiest policies, find out how you can get yourself removed from that very expensive category.

• Take a defensive driving course. Graduates of approved drivers' education and defensive driving courses usually are eligible for premium reductions.

This might take the form of removing points from your driving record. If you have children of driving age, enroll them in a drivers' education course rather than teaching them yourself. The small cost of the course will be more than offset by premium reductions.

• Consider an automobile alarm. The kind that activates automatically, called "passive" alarm systems, can produce major savings, especially if your car is very expensive or one of the models popular with car thieves.

• When buying insurance, make certain you fill out the required forms accurately and completely.

A falsehood or omission can be grounds for cancellation and can give the insurance company reason not to honor your claim.

• If you change companies to take advantage of a lower rate, be certain the new insurance company accepts you before you cancel your old policy.

The one place you cannot afford to reduce your coverage is in liability insurance.

In many states, the minimum required amount is unrealistically low — and it is likely that a court would award an amount far higher, with you liable for the difference.

Get as much liability coverage as you can afford, consistent with typical lawsuit awards in your region.

Mortgage insurance length may be lender's discretion

Dear Mr. Campbell:

What can you tell me about private mortgage insurance? It always has been my understanding that once you built up enough equity in your home the lender had to stop charging you for PMI. My lender says, "No way. The insurance stays on for the life of the mortgage." Is this true?

B.G.

Answer:

Maybe. Maybe not. OK, next question.

The trouble is that private mortgage insurance, although required by virtually all lenders if the down payment on the home was under 20 percent of the purchase price, is pretty much left to the discretion of the lender. The premium protects the lender if the mortgage goes sour and the general thinking is that a buyer who makes less than a 20 percent down payment on his home is more of a risk than the buyer who makes a down payment of 20 percent or more. And, admittedly, it's an argument with some validity.

At the same time, though, once the house appreciates enough — or, through his payments, the homeowner has increased his equity enough — to hit that 80/20 loan-to-value, most lenders take the position that PMI is no longer needed. Unfortunately (and there are exceptions to this) it is rarely an automatic dropping of the monthly premium. You have to ask for it.

When you apply for the insurance, there is an up-front charge, usually 1 percent of the amount borrowed, and then a monthly premium, usually 0.25 percent a year. You never get back the up-front charge and the monthly premium, in actual dollar figures, is a fairly modest amount that we tend to forget about because it is lumped in with the impound for taxes and insurance. However, over 10 or 20 years it's nothing to be taken lightly — particularly if you are paying it needlessly.

The first thing to do is to go back to your original loan documents or to the settlement statement given to you by the escrow company and make sure that you are paying the PMI. If you feel that

About real estate

By Don Campbell

you have hit the 80/20 mark, contact your lender about having the PMI dropped — and a phone call isn't going to do it. Some lenders will accept a letter from a local broker attesting to the fact that your home (based on the comparables in the same area) has a market value of about X dollars and, therefore, you have hit the 80/20 loan-to-value level.

More commonly, though, the lender will require a full-scale appraisal that will cost you anywhere from about $200 to $250 — roughly the equivalent of one year's PMI premiums on a $80,000 loan. If your lender has sold your mortgage to the Federal National Mortgage Association ("Fannie Mae"), and thousands of them do, the lender is obligated to tell you this. And Fannie Mae will cancel the PMI if the appraisal shows you at the 80/20 point. Some lenders who have sold your mortgage to Fannie Mae automatically will cancel PMI without any fanfare.

If your mortgage was sold to the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. ("Freddie Mac"), which operates like Fannie Mae but is privately held, the rules are a bit tougher — it won't let lenders remove PMI until the mortgage is at least 7 years old.

But if the lender himself is holding your mortgage, or if he's sold it to an investment firm other than Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac, you may be out of luck. There's no law requiring the cancellation of PMI by such lenders.

INSURE YOUR FUTURE

INSURANCE—The Ultimate Protection

Some basic things you should know

Medicare pays a large part of your health care expenses, but it does not pay them all. There are limits on Medicare payments for some covered services and medical supplies. You also must pay certain amounts called deductibles and co-payments.

There are some services which are not covered either by Medicare or most private insurance. For example:

• Custodial care in a nursing home or at home is not covered by Medicare, or most private insurance policies on the market today.

• Medicare and most private health insurance policies pay only a specified percent of the amount approved by Medicare. You pay the rest, including any charges in excess of those approved by Medicare. To avoid extra charges, ask your doctors or medical suppliers, such as laboratories and therapists, if they participate in Medicare or accept assignment of Medicare benefits. Assignment means that your doctor or other medical supplier has agreed to bill Medicare and accept the amount approved by Medicare as the total payment for services and supplies covered by the program. Participating doctors and suppliers accept assignment on all Medicare claims.

• Insurance to supplement Medicare, commonly called "Medigap" insurance, is not sold or serviced by the federal or state governments. Do not believe advertising or agents who suggest that Medicare supplement-sponsored program. Before you consider buying insurance to supplement Medicare, you should know what Medicare benefits are.

• Do you need private health insurance in addition to Medicare? Not everyone does.

• If you are a Medicare beneficiary enrolled in a prepayment plan, such as a health maintenance organization (HMO) or competitive medical plan (CMP), which has a contract with Medicare, you may not need a Medicare supplement policy.

• Low-income people who are eligible for Medicaid generally do not need additional insurance. Individuals who are eligible for regular Medicaid benefits qualify for certain health-care benefits beyond those covered by Medicare, such as long-term nursing home care.

• The recently enacted Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act of 1988 provides some limited financial assistance through Medicaid for paying your share of acute care costs if you are not otherwise eligible for Medicaid and you meet certain income and resource tests. If your annual income level ($3,770 for one person or $7,730 for a family of two) and you do not have access to many financial resources, you may qualify for government assistance in paying the Medicare premium, and at least some of the Medicare deductibles and co-payments. The maximum annual income for qualification may vary by state. If you qualify, this financial assistance will be offered through your state's medical assistance (Medicaid) program sometime in 1989. The date of availability will vary from state to state. If you think you may qualify, you should contact your state or local service agency.

"Policies differ widely as to coverage and costs, and companies differ as to service. Contact different companies and compare the policies carefully before you buy."

• Whether you need health insurance in addition to Medicare is a decision which you should discuss with someone you know who understands insurance and your financial situation. The best time to do this is before you reach age 65.

• Hints on shopping for private health insurance - shop carefully before you buy. Policies differ widely as to coverage and costs, and companies differ as to service. Contact different companies and compare the policies carefully before you buy.

• Don't buy more policies than you need. Duplicate coverage is costly and not necessary. A single comprehensive policy is better than several policies with overlapping or duplicate coverages.

• Consider your alternatives. To better meet your health-care needs, consider continuing the group coverage you have at work; joining an HMO, CMP or other prepayment plan; buying a long-term care insurance policy; or buying a Medicare supplement policy.

• Check for preexisting condition exclusions that reduce or eliminate coverage for existing health conditions. Many policies exclude coverage for preexisting health conditions. Preexisting conditions are generally defined as those conditions for which medical advice was given or treatment was recommended by or received from a physician before the effective date of your coverage under an insurance policy.

• Most state laws require Medicare supplement policies to cover preexisting conditions after the policy has been in effect for six months.

• Don't be misled by the phrase "no medical examination required." If you have had a health problem, the insurer might not cover you for expenses connected with that problem.

• Beware of replacing existing coverage. Be suspicious of a suggestion that you give up your policy and buy a replacement. Often the new policy will impose waiting periods or will have exclusions or waiting periods for preexisting conditions covered by your current policy. On the other hand, don't keep inadequate policies simply because you have had them a long time. You don't get credit with a company just because you've paid many years for a policy.

• Be aware of maximum benefits. Most policies have some type of limit on benefits which may be expressed in terms of dollars payable or the number of days for which payment will be made. Keep in mind that some insurance policies pay less than (or nothing) for hospital outpatient medical services or services in a doctor's office.

• Check your right to renew. Beware of policies that let the company refuse to renew your policy on an individual basis. These policies provide the least permanent coverage.

• Most policies cannot be canceled by the company unless all policies of that type are canceled in the state. Therefore, these policies cannot be canceled because of claims or disputes. Some policies are guaranteed renewable for life. This means that although your insured premiums may be adjusted from time to time, the insurance company cannot cancel your coverage. Policies that can be renewed automatically offer added protection.

• Be aware that policies to supplement Medicare are neither sold nor service by the state or federal governments. State insurance departments approve policies sold by insurance companies but approval only means the company and policy meet requirements of state law. Do not believe statements that insurance to supplement Medicare is a government-sponsored program. If anyone tells you that he or she is from the government and later tries to sell you an insurance policy, report that person to your State Insurance Department or federal authorities. This type of representation is a violation of federal and state law. It is also unlawful for a company or agent to falsely claim that a policy has been approved for sale in any state in which it has not received state approval, or to use fraudulent means to gain approval.

• Know with whom you're dealing. A company must meet certain qualifications to do business in your state. This is for your protection. Agents also must be licensed by your state and may be required by the state to carry proof of licensure showing their name and the company they represent.
